Product Social Impact Assessment

Product Social Impact Assessment is a methodology to assess positive and negative social impacts of products and services on four stakeholder groups: workers, local communities, small-scale entrepreneurs and users. This method has been developed by a group of around 20 companies that over a period of 5 years have worked together in the Roundtable for Product Social Metrics to directly experiment, share and improve a methodology that combines robustness and applicability for valuable results. Handbook and Methodology report are freely available on the Product Social Assessment website: product-social-impact-assessment.com

Mark Goedkoop

Mark is widely recognized as an international thought leader in the field of sustainability metrics and methodology development. His primary goal is to help companies create value from sustainable products and services. While with PRé, Mark has developed pioneering methodologies for impact assessment (Eco-indicator 95/99 and ReCiPe). He has also published seminal studies on sustainable consumption, rebounds, and product service systems methodology, as well as initiating development of the world's most widely used LCA software, SimaPro. Mark is the initiator of the Roundtable for Product Social Metrics.
